

Technicians'
Corner

February 7 2008

Lent and primaries are upon us so pray for rain and hope for candidates with good sense. Please be careful of any outdoor fires.

The water levels from end of January are very mixed with many wells showing the effects of irrigation pumps running. We do have some recharge going on with the trees and grass dormant. Water levels are not up to the levels we went into 2006 with but are around the 80-85% level. Water sampling has been fairly busy with folks checking wells to see if they can switch from public water systems to wells for household use.

I have been trying to get some of the topo grids in southern Tom Green finished but will go back to Runnels soon. I will also be looking to check some TWDB monitor wells in Concho to see if they can be picked up in our monitor well system.

Sincerely
