

July 8, 2009

Hot, dry, with brief showers and streaks of heavy rains. We have had a real mix of weather the last few weeks. If you wanted a hot 4th of July you should have been happy. We are still having 100+ days and now they come mixed with humidity.

Water levels were mostly down with some areas and wells showing large drops of 10-30 ft. Wells in the areas where there was restricted pumping either from crop usage or low water levels keeping pumps off tended to stay fairly even a few even going up a foot or two.

We are about to begin our yearly water quality sampling and this year the wells are mainly in Tom Green. Last year it was mostly Runnels and next year Concho. We try and keep the same wells but if we find locked or key coded gates we may change to wells with better access.

Pray for our country and its leaders.
