

May 21 2008

It is looking like it will be an interesting summer weather wise. If the year so far is any indication then it will be stormy with very hot spells in between.

Cotton planting is here and the corn is growing. Irrigation watering will be going full blast soon unless we get more rains. Water levels are dropping and on the average is around 1 ½ ft lower than last month.

We are replacing some rain gauges that were damaged by the hail storms. If you are a rainfall co-operator and need a new gauge or parts for an old one please call the office.

Have a safe and enjoyable Memorial day weekend.

Finis Allen
Technician